GENERIX GROUP BECOMES A CERTIFIED PEPPOL ACCESS POINT

And continues to pursue international expansion in the area of e-invoices.

Generix Group –a developer of SaaS solutions for the Supply Chain ecosystem– has expanded its European business activities in the e-invoicing market by becoming a certified PEPPOL Access Point provider. A real advantage for its customers given the small amount of certified PEPPOL Access Point providers today in France.

PEPPOL Access Point: Pan-European certification for public procurement

Since 2012, OpenPEPPOL association has been managing electronic exchanges between companies and government institutions for public procurement processes and invoicing. Certification thus simplifies cross-border e-procurement processes by developing technology standards capable of being implemented in all governments across Europe. The overall goal is to offer a solution for efficient electronic communication between companies and all government institutions in Europe, while reducing costs.

Eleven countries are already taking part in the project: Germany, Austria, Denmark, Finland, France, Greece, Italy, Norway, Portugal, United Kingdom and Sweden. PEPPOL is also supported by other countries such as Ireland, Belgium or Spain.

A business demand

As Christophe Viry, Generix Group Product Marketing Manager, states: “After various months of tests and development, the group has just obtained certification and can now offer optimal interconnectivity to its customers. In addition, it reinforces our position as a trusted third-party provider and our international stature. This solution has already been implemented with a number of our customers who were eagerly awaiting this certification.”

About Generix Group
